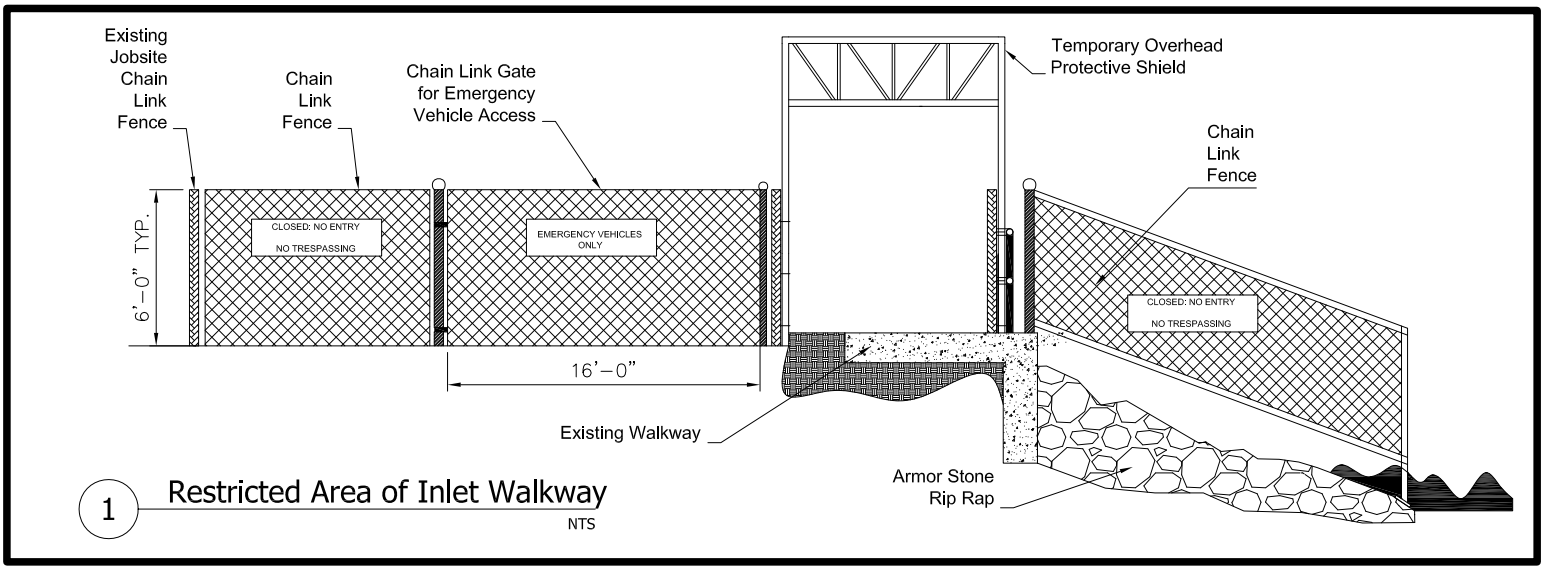
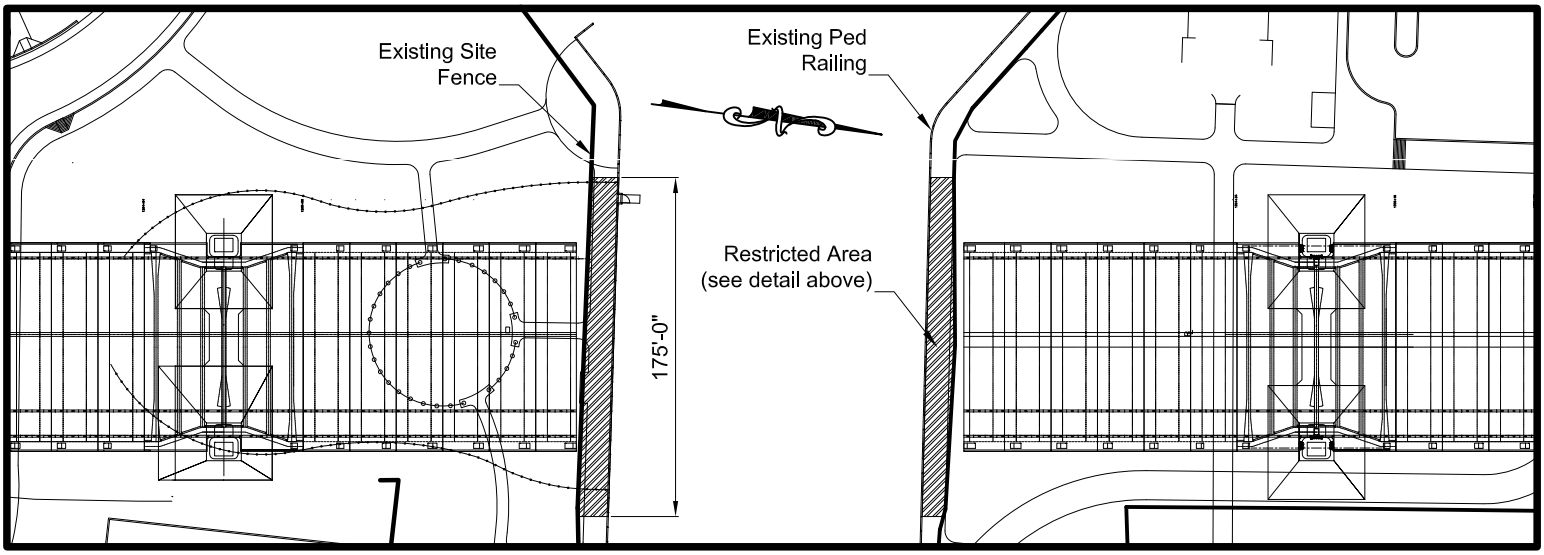
Public Notice: Pedestrain Walkway Restriction at Indian River Inlet Bridge





What's Happening: Starting around October 18th Skanska will be installing a temporary shield to protect the public from the potential overhead hazards of constructing the new Indian River Bridge over the existing pedestrian walkways.

When: October 18th 2010 - October 4th 2011

What this means to you: The shield will restrict pedestrian access along a 175 foot length along the inlet centered about the area of new construction. Pedestrians should avoid stopping / standing inside the shield whenever possible. Anglers should take note that fishing from either the inside of the shield or down along the armor stone rip-rap will be prohibited during this time.

For those needing access: During the construction period local emergency and state officials will have access through the restricted area via a chain link fence gate. This gate will remain locked at all times and anyone requiring access through the area should contact the DNREC field office at the number listed to the right:
