

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Several individuals assisted the Parsons team in providing research materials and local expertise about the Middleford Mills area. Edward F. Heite of Heite Consulting in Camden visited the site during excavation and provided Parsons with several historical documents, including an unpublished manuscript written by a local Middleford resident. Glen Mellin, a local Middleford resident and archaeologist who first documented the Middleford Mills as an archaeological district, aided the Parsons historians and archaeologists with relocation, identification, and documentation of many mill-related features. Mr. Louis Callahan, a local Middleford area resident, pointed out previously undocumented mill-related components on his property.
